

Daniel Reece

Daniel has been drumming for over 20 years and is mostly self taught. He loves diving into different styles of music and wants to share his experiences and creativity with any level student. Drums are exciting and challenging, and he enjoys passing the art form along to others interested in learning.